What is an IRIS Document? An IRIS Document is a standard format for data exchange in the field of speech and language pathology and audiology. There are about 30 such standards, but IRIS-V1 is the only one that is universally recognised. IRIS-V1 is a standard, developed by the International Speech and Language Association (ISLA) and now published by the Royal College of Speech and Language Therapists (RCSLT). It was developed as a result of a lengthy process of consultation with a number of stake-holders and with the co-operation of the International Association for Language and Speech Pathology and Audiology (IALPA). This resulted in a document that would "meet the needs of the profession" and be in line with the prevailing computer technology. IRIS-V1 is based on the work of the IRIS Consortium, a group of speech therapists and audiologists that were involved in the development of the standard. The first version of the standard was published in September 1994, and since then there has been three further editions, IRIS-V1.1, IRIS-V2 and IRIS-V3. You can find a link to the IRIS consortium at the bottom of this document. What is the difference between IRIS-V1 and IRIS-V3? The IRIS-V1 document was an interim standard. IRIS-V3 came with a number of new features, including semantic information, and was compatible with previous editions of IRIS-V1. The IRIS-V3 document was published in 2006, and can be obtained at www.michaelscort.com/catalog.php3?class=src/michaelscort-core-downloads. Who can use the IRIS standard? The IRIS-V1 standard can be used by any speech therapist, audiologist, child, adult and general

In this mode, you can create smart PDF filter graphs. You can automatically extract text data from PDF, convert it into documents and annotate it in parallel with other text data from the same PDF file. This technology is designed to help you work faster and smarter. Seema Visual Filter Graphs: Seema is a social-media platform that offers very powerful filtering features on user-generated content. With Filtering module we add more filter methods and integrations that allow creating powerful filtering algorithms. Filtering is not only able to filter users' content, but it can also filter posts, events, communities and media. Seema's Filter is able to handle all the filters we can find on Twitter or any other social-media platform. It is based on Seema's API and can be connected to all the other Seema features, such as Chatbot, Analytics, or even its own Logistic AI. Our filter method can be placed anywhere in the Seema backend: Users, Communities, Communities and Channels, Chatbot and Analytics. General File Writer The File Writer is a simple app that allows you to save your file with the extension you choose. You can use the File Writer in order to save anything that you want, from word documents to pdfs and more.
